Allegretto.

The sculp-tur'd urn a na-tion's praise, Are the meed for a name of re-
 In lone room sits a mai-den fair, Toiling hard for a seam-stress'
 In a far land 'neath an ori-ent sun, Where plea-sure's al-lurements a-
 'Tis not in the storm or bat-tle's rear, That true cou- rage is need-ed a-

- nown, But lit-tle we reek the low - ly worth, That lives 'neath for-tune's
 - pay, Her beauty and youth the world would prize, Could it tempt her to serve a -
 - bound, There's one who pledg'd his youth-ful love, And follows his du - ty's
 - lone, There's many a heart in life's dark page, Whose vir-tues re-main un-frown; The mar-ble tab-let may re-cord, The praise for vir-tue

 - stray; But her thoughts e'er turn to a wi - dow'd heart, And the help-less lov'd ones
 - round; For the jest and jeer un - heed - ed pass, But his faith they ne'er sub-
